Risk Factors

- The Company depends on Commencement NY LLC, (its “Manager”) to select its investments and conduct its operations. The Company will pay fees and expenses to its Manager and its affiliates that were not determined on an arm’s-length basis, and therefore the Company does not have the benefit of arm’s-length negotiations of the type normally conducted between unrelated parties. These fees increase your risk of loss.
- The Company has no operating history and its total assets consist of $1,000 in cash. There can be no assurance that the Company will achieve its investment objectives.
- This is a “blind pool” offering because the Company has not identified any investments to acquire with the net proceeds of this offering. You will not be able to evaluate its investments prior to purchasing shares.
- The Company’s Manager’s executive officers are also officers, managers and key professionals of its sponsor and its affiliates. As a result, they will face conflicts of interest, including time constraints, allocation of investment opportunities and significant conflicts created by its Manager’s compensation arrangements with the Company and other affiliates of its sponsor.
- The Company’s sponsor may sponsor other companies that compete with the Company, and its sponsor does not have an exclusive management arrangement with the Company; however, its sponsor has adopted a policy for allocating investments between different companies that it sponsors with similar investment strategies.
- The Company’s advisory board members are incentivized to recommend their own services and to maximize their estimation of its need for such services, and as a result, they face conflicts of interest.
- This offering is being made pursuant to recently adopted rules and regulations under the newly revised Regulation A rules (commonly referred to as “Regulation A+”) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, or the Securities Act. The legal and compliance requirements of these rules and regulations, including ongoing reporting requirements related thereto, are relatively untested.
- If the Company raises substantially less than the maximum offering amount, the Company may not be able to acquire a diverse portfolio of investments and the value of your shares may vary more widely with the performance of specific assets. The Company may commence operations with as little as $1,000,000 (including proceeds from common shares purchased by affiliates of its Manager).
- If the Company internalizes its management functions, your interest in the Company could be diluted and the Company could incur other significant costs associated with being self-managed.
- The Company may change its investment guidelines without shareholder consent, which could result in investments that are different from those described in this offering circular.
- The Company does not expect to declare any distributions until the proceeds from its public offering are invested and generating operating cash flow. While its goal is to pay distributions from its cash flow from operations, the Company may use other sources to fund distributions, including offering proceeds, borrowings or sales of assets. The Company has not established a limit on the amount of proceeds the Company may use to fund distributions. If the Company pays distributions from sources other than its cash flow from operations, the Company will have less funds available for investments and investors’ overall return may be reduced.
- The Company’s common shares will not be listed at the time of purchase and you will have no liquidity until such time as its common shares either (a) become listed on the NASDAQ or NYSE, or (b) become quoted with the OTC. There is no guarantee that its common shares will become so listed or quoted.
- Real estate investments are subject to general downturns in the industry as well as downturns in specific geographic areas. The Company cannot predict what the occupancy level will be in a particular building or that any tenant will remain solvent. The Company also cannot predict the future value of its properties. Accordingly, the Company cannot guarantee that you will receive cash distributions or appreciation of your investment.

NY Residential REIT

New York City real estate has long attracted global investors seeking income, appreciation, and inflation-protection. However, with the average apartment in Manhattan priced at more than $2 million¹, only a limited pool of investors have the resources necessary to invest directly in Manhattan residential real estate. Commencement Capital LLC has formed NY Residential REIT, LLC (the “Company”) to purchase, invest in, and manage a portfolio of residential properties located in Manhattan, which will provide both accredited and non-accredited investors with the ability to obtain exposure to Manhattan residential real estate.

The Company intends to focus on acquiring properties that the Company believes are likely to generate stable cash flows in the long term and have significant possibilities for short-term capital appreciation, such as those requiring development, redevelopment or repositioning, those located in neighborhoods with what the Company see as high growth potential and those available from sellers who are distressed or face time-sensitive deadlines. The Company will also seek to generate cash flow through the leasing of properties to residential tenants.

The Company’s primary investment objectives are to:

- preserve, protect and return invested capital; and
- realize cash flow and capital appreciation in the value of its investments

Highlights

- Experienced Management — The Company’s Manager, through its relationship with the Company’s sponsor, retains highly experienced real estate professionals, including Jesse Stein, its Chief Executive Officer, and Jonathan Morris, its President. These executive officers provide stability in the management of the Company’s business and allow the Company to benefit from the knowledge and industry contacts they have gained through numerous real estate cycles.
- Advisory Board — The Company’s sponsor has formed an advisory board to the Company consisting of experienced residential real estate professionals in New York City. The Company expects that the members of the advisory board will provide value to the Company by sourcing investment opportunities, providing insight on the New York City real estate market, and by providing services to the company that they individually specialize in.
- Market Knowledge and Industry Relationships — Through their active and broad participation in the real estate capital markets, the Company’s sponsor and advisory board benefit from market information that enables them to identify attractive real estate investment opportunities and to make informed decisions with regard to the relative valuation of financial assets and capital allocation. The Company believe that the Company’s sponsor’s and advisory board’s extensive industry relationships with a wide variety of real estate owners and operators, brokers and other intermediaries will provide the Company with a competitive advantage in sourcing attractive investment opportunities to meet the Company’s investment objectives.
- Investor Accessibility — It is difficult for smaller investors to participate directly in investments in the New York City residential real estate market. The Company’s common shares provide accessibility for individual investors to own interests in high-quality Manhattan residential real estate in the form of a public security.
- “Pure Play Investment” — The Company intends to only acquire or invest in residential properties in Manhattan, providing investors with an allocation to a specific region of the residential real estate market.

Investment Strategy

The Company's investment objectives are to:

- preserve , protect and return invested capital
- realize cash flow and capital appreciation in the value of its investments

The Company will incorporate a flexible investment strategy that focuses on properties with the potential for significant capital appreciation, such as those requiring renovations or repositioning, those located in neighborhoods with high growth potential and those available from sellers who are distressed or face time-sensitive deadlines. Properties will consist of apartment units (e.g. condominiums and co-ops), single family homes, and multi-family properties. The Company intends to elect to be taxed as a real estate investment trust (REIT).

Specific strategies include, but are not limited to:

- Acquiring or investing in properties in need of large-scale or cosmetic renovation.
- Acquiring or investing in properties encumbered by existing tenancy.
- Acquiring or investing in properties quickly from sellers with timing restrictions.
- Acquiring or investing in bulk condominium and co-op units
- Acquiring condominium units in advance of completion.

Investment Process

To execute the Company's disciplined investment approach, the Company's Manager will take responsibility for the business plan of each investment. The following practices summarize the Company's investment approach:

- Local Market Research – The Company's Manager will extensively research the acquisition and underwriting of each transaction, utilizing both real time market data and the transactional knowledge and experience of the Company's network of professionals and in market relationships.
- Underwriting Discipline – The Company's Manager will follow a tightly controlled and managed process to examine all elements of a potential investment, including, with respect to real property, its location, income-producing capacity, prospects for long-range appreciation, income tax considerations and liquidity. Only those assets meeting the Company's investment criteria will be accepted for inclusion in its portfolio.
- Risk Management – Risk management will be a fundamental principle in the Company's construction of portfolios and in the management of each investment. Diversification of portfolios by investment type, investment size and investment risk is critical to controlling portfolio-level risk. Operating or performance risks arise at the investment level and often require real estate operating experience to cure. The Company's Manager will review the operating performance of investments against projections and provide the oversight necessary to detect and resolve issues as they arise.
- Asset Management – Prior to the purchase of an individual asset or portfolio, the Company's Manager will develop an asset business strategy which will be customized based on the acquisition and underwriting data. This is a forecast of the action items to be taken and the capital needed to achieve the anticipated returns. The Company's Manager will review asset business strategies regularly to anticipate changes or opportunities in the market during a given phase of a real estate cycle.

The criteria that the Company's Manager will consider when evaluating prospective investment opportunities include:

- macroeconomic conditions that may influence operating performance;
- real estate market factors that may influence real estate valuations, real estate financing and/or economic performance of real estate generally;
- real estate and leasing market conditions affecting the real estate;
- the cash flow in place and projected to be in place over the expected hold period of the real estate;
- the appropriateness of estimated costs and timing associated with capital improvements of the real estate;
- a valuation of the investment, investment basis relative to its value and the ability to liquidate an investment through a sale or refinancing of the real estate;
- review of third-party reports, including appraisals, engineering and environmental reports;
- physical inspections of the real estate and analysis of markets; and
- the overall structure of the investment and rights in the transaction documentation.

Joint Venture Investments

The Company is likely to enter into joint ventures, partnerships, or other co-ownership arrangements with third parties for the acquisition, development or improvement of properties for the purpose of diversifying its portfolio of assets. The Company may also enter into joint ventures, partnerships, and other co-ownership arrangements or participations with real estate developers, owners and other third parties for the purpose of developing, owning and operating real properties. A joint venture creates an alignment of interest with a private source of capital for the benefit of the Company's shareholders, by leveraging the Company's acquisition, development and management expertise in order to achieve the following four primary objectives: (1) increase the return on invested capital; (2) diversify its access to equity capital; (3) "leverage" invested capital to promote the Company's brand and increase market share; and (4) obtain the participation of sophisticated partners in the Company's real estate decisions. In determining whether to invest in a particular joint venture, the Company's Manager will evaluate the real property that such joint venture owns or is being formed to own under the same criteria described elsewhere in this offering circular for the Company's selection of real property investments.

Acquisitions through Contributions

The Company plans to own substantially all of its assets and conduct its operations through NY Res REIT LP, a Delaware limited partnership, which the Company refers to as its operating partnership. Because the Company plans to conduct substantially all its operations through the operating partnership, the Company is considered an UPREIT. UPREIT stands for "Umbrella Partnership Real Estate Investment Trust." We believe that using an UPREIT structure may give the Company an advantage in acquiring properties from persons who may not otherwise sell their properties because of certain unfavorable U.S. federal income tax consequences⁶.

The Company intends to market a program to owners of properties that fit the Company's criteria to contribute their interests in exchange for units of its operating partnership. In a contribution structure, a seller of a property who desires to defer taxable gain on the sale of his, her or its property may transfer the property to our operating partnership exchange for OP Units and thereby defer taxation of gain until the seller later elects to exchange his, her, or its OP Units for common shares or, at our election, cash. This structure also provides a property owner the ability to diversify his, her or its holdings, increase cash flow and reduce management responsibilities. Using a contribution structure may give us an advantage in acquiring properties from persons who may not otherwise be able to realize certain benefits of a contribution transaction from other buyers.

Leverage

The Company expects to employ leverage to enhance total returns to its shareholders through a combination of senior financing on the Company's real estate acquisitions, secured facilities, and capital markets financing transactions. The Company's target portfolio-wide leverage after it has acquired an initial substantial portfolio of diversified investments is between 30-60% of the greater of cost (before deducting depreciation or other non-cash reserves) or fair market value of its assets.

Stock Listing or Quotation

There is presently no public market for the Company's common shares. The Company intends to apply either (a) to list its common shares on the NASDAQ or the NYSE, or (b) for the quotation of the Company's common shares with the OTC. If the Company applies to list its common shares on the NASDAQ or the NYSE, there is no guarantee that the Company will meet the listing standards of either organization. If the Company chooses to apply for quotation of its common shares on the OTC, its common shares may be quoted only to the extent that there is interest by broker-dealers in acting as a market maker. Despite its best efforts, the Company may not be able to convince any broker-dealers to act as market makers and make quotations with the OTC.

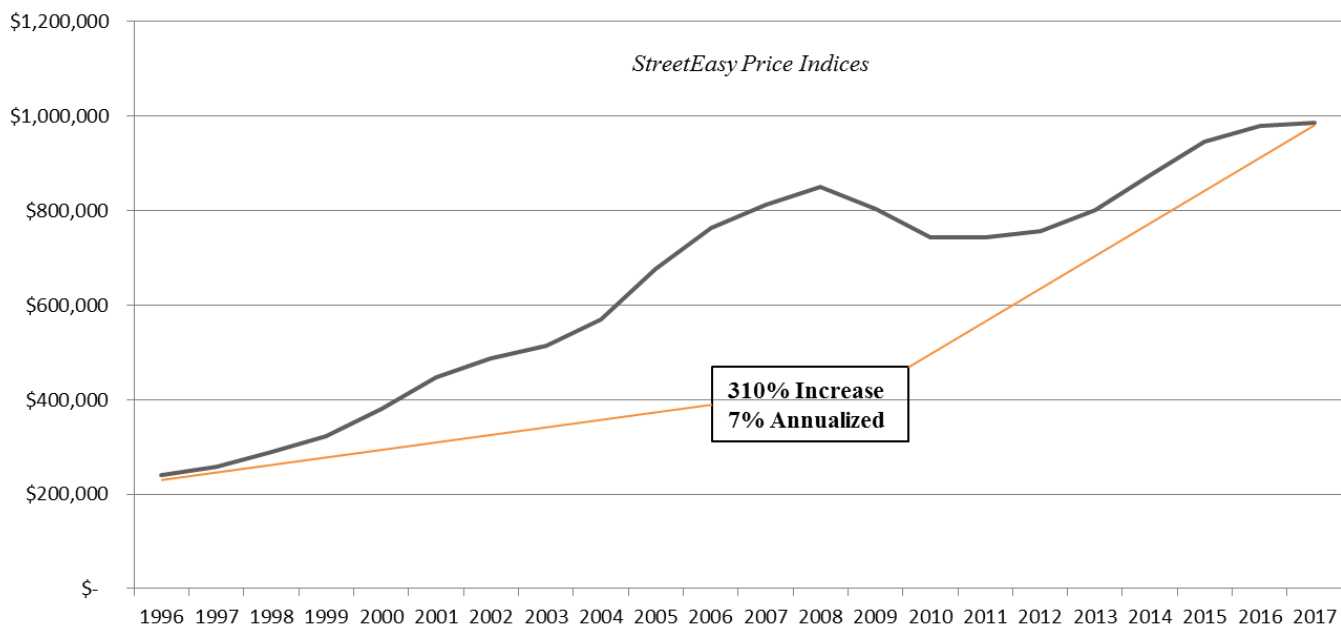

Market Opportunity

The Company believes that Manhattan residential properties represent a good investment opportunity at this time due to a softening of the luxury condominium market that has occurred primarily due to an increase in supply. The Company expects that as an institutional buyer in a specific sector of real estate that is traditionally non-institutional, the Company can take advantage of a fragmented and inefficient market and acquire or invest in properties at attractive valuations that have the potential for significant long-term capital appreciation.

- “Manhattan’s housing market over the past few years has been at the mercy of climbing luxury prices. Now stagnating price growth is spreading from the top end of the market to the middle, while demand for lower-priced homes increases.”⁽⁷⁾
- “The end of 2016 foreshadowed what the Company expect to see in 2017 – increased competition in relatively affordable areas like Upper Manhattan, and even more price cuts in the luxury sector as Manhattan’s market finds equilibrium.”⁽⁷⁾
- Almost 40 percent of all Manhattan sales listings had a price cut in the fourth quarter and Manhattan sellers received a median of 97.4 percent of their asking price, compared to almost 100 percent last year.⁽⁷⁾

Median Resale Price- Manhattan

According to the StreetEasy Manhattan Price Index, since 1996, the median resale price of Manhattan residential real estate has increased by over 300%. The index includes condominiums, townhouses, and co-ops, providing a fuller picture of the NYC residential market.⁽⁷⁾
